

SPi

Obtaining reliable information on the global structured products industry is notoriously difficult. Combining information from the various WSD platforms with direct feeds from manufacturers, SPi provides a comprehensive database of reference data and lifecycle information.

Our solution

- Structured products market intelligence, including league tables, key trends and market commentary
- Reference data for the U.S. and European structured products industry provided in a standardized data format
- Lifecycle information for all products, including early redemptions and coupons
- Access to all data via web UI, REST API and Microsoft Excel files

Step 1: Market intelligence

Access market intelligence covering distribution channels, trends, volatility and delta on specific underlyings.

Step 2: Reference data

Browse our database of current structured products information, including secondary market prices, coupons and underlying observations.

Step 3: Daily prices

Take advantage of our stored daily structured product prices and view and download reports on the historical performance of your clients' products.

Step 4: Lifecycle information

Benefit from automated processing of all lifecycle events relating to your structured products, available via email and REST API.
